This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at `http://books.google.com/`

PUBLISHERS' NOTE

MISTAKES WILL UNDOUBTEDLY BE FOUND IN THIS VOLUME, BUT THEY EXIST NOT FOR WANT OF PAINSTAKING EFFORTS TO AVOID THEM, BUT GENERALLY FROM IMPERFECT MANUSCRIPTS OR CONFLICTING STATEMENTS OF STANDARD AUTHORITIES. WHAT IS WORTH RECORDING AT ALL, IS WORTH RECORDING CAREFULLY AND CORRECTLY; AND WHEN MISTAKES ARE DISCOVERED, A MEMORANDUM OF THE ERRORS SHOULD AT ONCE BE SENT TO THE PUBLISHERS FOR CORRECTION IN FUTURE EDITIONS OF THIS WORK.

PREFACE

SUCCESSFUL AMERICANS is thoroughly National, covering every part of the United States, and puts in enduring form something of the history of great American merchants, manufacturers, railroad builders and other great men who have played an important part in the country's history. It is not insisted that the work is fully comprehensive, but it is thought that it occupies a place of importance in a field which has not heretofore been occupied.

This most admirable collection of contemporary biography of America's foremost leaders of life and thought will be an invaluable acquisition to the world's libraries and historical archives. The sketches of the leaders of life and thought now at the helm of America's Ecclesiastical, Civil, Military, Industrial and Commercial lines of human activity have been selected with the greatest of care from current historical works and publications and from various other sources. As Builders and Merchants they have built cities and illumined the marts of trade; in the field of science and medicine they have obtained great prominence; in the arena of statesmanship they have produced men of thought and men of action, while at the bar and in the administration of Justice they have shown erudition and wisdom. As clergymen, educators and lecturers they have occupied high places; and as musicians, composers, artists, authors and poets they have contributed profusely to social life.

This volume is submitted to the public in the confidence that the careers herein described will be found stimulating to patriotism; and a potent factor in cheering and inspiring the efforts of rising generations.

SUCCESSFUL AMERICANS

JOHN JOSEPH KINDRED,

Physician and Congressman,

Was born in Southampton county, Virginia, July 15, 1864. He was educated in the Suffolk Military academy (Va.), paying practically all his expenses from his savings by clerking in a country store; at Randolph-Macon college, and at the University of Virginia. He completed his medical studies at the hospital course in Louisville, Ky, graduating as an M.D. in 1889. Removing to New York in 1889, without friends or money, he served as physician in many hospitals and institutions for mental and nervous diseases, including Bloomingdale asylum (New York), Hudson River State hospital. He also took post-graduate courses in medicine in New York, spending some time abroad in study. He was graduated in the department of mental diseases in the University of Edinburgh, Scotland, and served as extra assistant physician in the Royal asylum, Morningside, Edinburgh, Scotland. A year later he established a sanitarium in Stamford, Conn. In 1896 he established the River Crest sanitarium at Astoria, Borough of Queens, New York City, for mental and nervous diseases, one of the largest private institutions of the kind in the country. He is recognized as an authority in the treatment of mental and nervous diseases and has lectured and published many articles on these subjects. He has always taken an active interest in public affairs, devoting all possible time to effect the betterment of conditions and the higher efficiency of public officials, keeping posted on state and national issues. His nomination and election to congress came without any solicitation on his part.

He has written for scientific publications, and is the author of several Monographs. He now fills the chair of landscape gardening and curator in the Southern Illinois normal university.

O. B. STEELE,

State Treasurer of Louisiana,

Was born Dec. 2, 1844, in Henderson, Ky. He was educated in the public schools of his native state; and at Henderson academy. He is a successful banker and planter of Baton Rouge, La., and is vice-president of the bank of Baton Rouge, La. For two terms he was a member of the state legislature; for one term was a member of the state senate; and in 1884-92 sered two terms of four years each as state auditor of Louisiana. He is now state treasurer of Louisiana for the term of 1908-12. As a soldier he followed the fortunes of the confederacy, and his promotion from bugler boy through every rank to that of a captaincy was rapid, which position he attained before he was twenty-one years of age. As public servant, while a resident of Union parish, he served in the house and state senate, during the terms of Nicholls, Wiltz and McEnery, from 1876 to 1884, and as state auditor from 1884 to 1888. In the heated campaign of 1888, between Nicholls and McEnery, Captain Steele's intimate acquaintance with every detail of the state's financial affairs being recognized, he was unanimously endorsed for re-election by both factions, and served as auditor under Nicholls from 1888 to 1892. His investigation of and report on the bonded debt, made to Governor Nicholls, was most thorough and exhaustive, and today is the highest and best authority on the subject. In 1892 he was one of Louisiana's electors who cast the vote of the state for Grover Cleveland for president. He was the active head of the state treasury under Colonel Pickett, during Foster's first administration. He has had conspicuous part in the formation of the state's fiscal policies and has been the author of much of the best legislation on the statute books concerning this department, among which is the act of 1892, providing for the exchange of the seven per cent. bonded indebtedness, on which interest had been reduced, into the new or now outstanding 4 per cent. bonds of the state, which will mature Jan. 1, 1914. As a man of affairs he has been a success, being one of the leading business men and financiers at the state capitol; public-spirited, he has taken a most active part in every movement for the upbuilding of Baton Rouge, where he has resided since retiring from the auditor's office. His memorable campaign in 1898 for the state treasurership and unopposed election to that office three years ago, are a part of the political history of the state. If the constitution of the state did not prohibit the treasurer succeeding himself, there is little doubt of his unopposed re-election as state treasurer, if he chose to make that race in the present campaign. Next to the governor of the state, the auditorship is the most important office in the gift of the people. This is especially true at this time when the public debt is to be refunded and the intricate and important matters of the finances of the state are to be adjusted and settled for generations to come.

FRANK WOODMAN,

Manufacturer, Charleston, W. Va.

Was born Sept. 26, 1846, at Mineral Point, Wis. Is a descendant of the first man child who saw the light of day in Newbury, Mass. As the son of Cyrus Woodman, lawyer, banker and real estate owner, and of Charlotte Flint, his wife, Mr. Woodman began life with some advantages of culture and ease. Graduating from Harvard college in 1869, he chose an open air profession at first and served as an axeman on the Burlington and Missouri River railroad in Nebraska for a year, and rose to the place of division engineer. In 1875, Mr. Woodman selected Charleston, W. Va., as his future habitation, and, with an inherited means, soon infused much northern energy into that tranquil and patrician state. At the threshold of his career there, he became a manufacturer of woolen goods in the Kanawha Woolen Mills, and later of articles for household use in the Dawley Furniture company and the Roy Furniture company, but has since been occupied with nearly every problem connected with local development, and, as a maker of bricks, president of the Charleston Water Works company, manager and chief owner of the Elk Foundry and Machine company, and the Charleston Gas and Electric company; first vice-president of Charleston Board of Trade and the promoter of other enterprises, has revived the city immensely. He is also largely interested in the Mountain Lake Land company and in lands in Minnesota. A bright mind, unflagging labor and sleepless activity have made him the leading business man of his city. Oct. 15, 1884, Mr. Woodman married Nannie M., daughter of Dr. John Cotton, a descendant of the Rev. John Cotton of Boston, and he is the father of Ashton Fitzhugh and Charlotte Woodman.

C. & N. railroad, terminals and the stock yards at Sioux City; is a democrat of some distinction; was a candidate for congress in 1896; has literary tastes and is a self-made man.

JAMES RENWICK BREVOORT, N. A.,

Architect,

Was born July 20, 1832, in Westchester county, and is a lineal descendant of Jan Heinrich van Brevoort, who emigrated from Gronigen, Holland, and settled in New Amsterdam (now New York) about 1642. He received most of his art education in New York, in the studio of the late Thomas S. Cummings, then vice-president of the National academy of design. In 1873, he went to Europe, where he remained about seven years, visiting nearly all the schools and art centers of Europe, studying the ancient and modern works of art in the galleries of the Old World. Most of the time while in Europe, his residence was in Florence, Italy, where he had his studio and pursued his profession, painting many works of Italian scenery, particularly of the Italian lakes. During his residence in Florence, he received the honor of being made a member of the Royal Academy of Urbino, the birthplace of Raphael. Some of his most important works have been pictures of English heaths and moorlands — such as A Windy Day on the Border of a Heath, A Day of Wind and Rain on a Moor, The Night Wind Swept the Moorland Lea, Home of the Witch, Haunted Pool, etc. The artist's taste has inclined him to paint more of the solemn and weird aspects of nature, to which the heaths and moors of England most readily lend themselves. More recently he has devoted himself to water-colors of American and foreign scenes. His works are well-known, and can be found in various private collections. He was made an Academician of the National academy of design in New York in 1863. In 1870 he was appointed professor of scientific perspective at the Academy of design, upon which subject he gave courses of lectures with demonstrations during three years. Before devoting himself to the study of landscape painting, he was employed in the office of his cousin, Mr. James Renwick, the well-known architect, during four years, and was Mr. Renwick's assistant in preparing the plans for St. Patrick's cathedral in New York, the workhouse on Blackwell's island, and many other public and private buildings. He came to Yonkers in 1880, and in 1890 built his present residence. He was married in 1873 to Miss Marie Louise Bascom, and has three children, two daughters and one son.

GEORGE WARREN WOOD,

GEORGE WARREN BROWN,

President The Brown Shoe Company and Pioneer of Successful Shoe Manufacturing in St. Louis.

Was born March 21, 1853, in Granville, N.Y. He was educated in the public schools of his native town; and in 1872 graduated from the Bryant and Stratton commercial college of Troy, N.Y. In 1873 he secured position as shipping clerk in a shoe house at St. Louis, Mo.; became traveling salesman within a year; and in less than five years became a leading man with his firm, at which time he was greatly impressed as to the future possibilities of

St. Louis as a shoe manufacturing center, but was unable to make his employers see the same idea sufficiently strong to induce them to then attempt manufacturing. He became so much enthused over the idea, however, that he resigned a lucrative position to put himself on the altar of shoe manufacturing in St. Louis, if results should so decree, but the enterprise proved successful so that his hard earned savings put into venture, and his investment of time were not sacrificed. The success of this pioneer concern caused other to soon follow and St. Louis has become in a comparatively short period the greatest shoe market (selling exclusively retail dealers) in the United States. The Brown Shoe company was organized in November, 1878, under name of Bryan-Brown Shoe company. This institution has become one of the greatest shoe organizations in America. Mr. Brown has been an important factor in helping to build up many St. Louis enterprises for the advancement of the city of his adoption. He is also prominent in religious and philanthropic affairs in St. Louis.

JOHN W. ILIFF,

Cattle Ranchman,

Was born in 1831, in Ohio. A self-made man, never made more than one excursion into any business vocation not connected with the soil of his native land. He spent his early life in farming and managed to gain a good education and graduated from Delaware college. He first went to Kansas in 1853, and then to Colorado in 1856, with a wagon train of provisions, from the proceeds of which he bought cattle. He originated and developed the driving of cattle from Texas to the northern ranges of Colorado, Wyoming and western Nebraska. He gradually acquired the land on all the small streams and around springs to the extent of some 60,000 acres and this controlled a range of several hundred thousand acres. At one time he had as many as 60,000 head of cattle. He died Feb. 9, 1878, at his residence in Denver, Col., leaving a widow, Elizabeth, two sons, William S. and John W. Jr., and two daughters, Edna and Louise. All his children survive him except his youngest son, John W. Jr. His widow, Elizabeth, is now the wife of Bishop H. W. Warren and his son William is largely interested in various gas, electric and street railway systems in the western states, also irrigation and coal companies.

His father was a pioneer teacher in Indiana, having been superintendent of schools at Richmond in 1856, at Liberty from 1858 to 1862, and later at North Madison, Rising Sun and Lawrenceburg. Dr. J. N. Hurty, the subject of this sketch, studied medicine, pharmacy and chemistry, at Philadelphia from 1872 to 1875. Selecting his life work early, there was no hesitancy. Dr. Hurty has been a continuous resident of Indianapolis since 1873. During that time he served two years as a member of the faculty of Purdue university. He served as a member of the Indianapolis city board of health, and was city health officer for nine years. He became state health officer, and secretary of the state board of health in 1887, and has held the position continuously since, rendering the people of the state most valuable service. He has earned and enjoys fully the utmost confidence of the citizenship. No subject affecting the public health is too insignificant to incite his interest and investigation, and no point in the state is too remote for his personal visitation when duty seems to call. Dr. Hurty is also entitled to much credit for recent legislation to prevent food adulterations, and to safeguard the public health in various ways. Dr. Hurty is a member of the American medical association, the Indiana state medical society, the American public health association, and the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He is also professor of hygiene in the Indiana university school of medicine, at Indianapolis. Was born Aug. 31, 1866, at Shakopee, Minn. The ancestors of the subject of this sketch, on both the paternal and maternal sides, were of good old Colonial stock, having come to this country about the year 1650. Several members of the family were soldiers in the War of the Revolution. Henry Hinds, the father of Charles, was an early pioneer in the state of Minnesota, coming here in 1854 and settling at Shakopee, where he has ever since resided and practiced law. He was born at Hebron, New York, in 1826; graduated from Albany Normal college in 1850; took up the study of law in the Cincinnati law school and graduated from that institution in 1852. In 1853 he was married to Mary F. Woodworth, the mother of the subject of this sketch. The following year Mr. Hinds came to Minnesota and opened a law office at Sha-kopee. He has held many offices of public trust. He was one of the leading lawyers of the eighth judicial district up to the time of his retiring from active practice in 1884. In the early days he acted as the county-attorney of Scott county and judge of probate. He was a member of the lower house of the legislature from Scott county in 1878, and was made a member of the board of managers in the impeachment of Judge Page, making the closing argument for the board before the senate. In 1879 and 1881 he served in the state senate. Charles Gilbert Hinds received his early education in the common schools of Shakopee, and in 1883 entered the state university, taking a special course for two years. In 1885 he entered the law department of the university of Michigan, graduating with a degree of LL.B. in 1887. He received his cetrificate of admission to the bar on his twenty-first birthday, and immediately began the practice of his profession in his native town—Shakopee—where he has remained. In 1894 he was elected county attorney at Scott county. He is a mason, a member of the A.O.U.W., of which he was grand master workman of the state, and the M.W. of A. Is a lawyer and resides in St. Paul. Mr. Stevens' father was a physician, Dr. John Stevens, of Bangor, Maine. At the time of the birth of the subject of this sketch, Dr. Stevens was a resident of Boston, and Frederick Clement Stevens was born there Jan. 1, 1861. He began his education in the village schools of Searsport, Maine, and graduated from the high school of Rockland, Maine, 1877. The following year he entered Bowdoin college, at Brunswick, Maine, where he graduated in the class of 1881. Mr. Stevens had decided to adopt the profession of law, and began his preparation with Hon. A. W. Paine, of Bangor. Soon afterwards, however, he came west and completed his law course in the state university of Iowa, where he graduated from the law department in 1884. The same year he removed to St. Paul, and entered upon the practice of law. He was elected to the lower house of the legislature from the twenty-sixth district, in 1889, and was re-elected by both republicans and democrats in 1891. He was elected to congress from the fourth congressional district of Minnesota as a republican in 1896 and has since been seven times re-elected. He was married at Lansing, Mich., in 1889, to Ellen J. Fargo. They have no children.

HENRY J. HEINZ,

Manufacturer,

Was born Oct. 11, 1844, in Pittsburgh, Pa. He was educated in the public schools, and at the age of fifteen became his father's bookkeeper and practical assistant in the business of brick-making, building and contracting, carried on at Sharpsburg, a suburban town to which the family had moved. He also devoted a part of his time in operating a garden near the family residence, selling the product in the Pittsburgh market. In 1869 he began to bottle horse radish for the market, and from this beginning has grown the H. J. Heinz company, of which he is president, which is the largest food product establishment of its kind in the world, having ramifications in both production and distribution in almost every country in the world. Mr. Heinz is a director of the Union National bank, Pittsburgh; Western Insurance company, Pittsburgh; president of the Winona Interurban railway company, Indiana; and president of the Pennsylvania State Sunday School association; and connected as trustee or director with many other civic, educational and religious organizations. In politics he has acted with the republican party on national issues, but has never sought or held office. He is a member of the Presbyterian church. In 1869 he was married to Sallie Sloan Young, who died in 1894. He has four children, one daughter and three sons.

GEORGE BURLEY SPALDING,

Clergyman,

Was born Aug. 11, 1835, in Montpelier, Vt., the third son of James Spalding, a distinguished physician and surgeon, and Eliza Reed. The family of Spalding gave its name to the town in Lincolnshire, Eng., which is mentioned in a charter for the foundation of the great Crowland abbey, granted by King Ethelbert, whose reign began in 716. On the maternal side the ancestry is unbrokenly traced to Brianus de Rede, who in 1139 held a great estate at Morpeth, on the Wensback, in the north of England. The earliest American ancestors were Edward Spalding, of Braintree, Mass., at Virginia, 1619, and John Reed, of Rehoboth, Mass. Many of their descendants served in the early Indian wars and in the revolution. George Burley was graduated from the university of Vermont in 1856, studied law with Judge W. G. M. Davis, of Tallahassee, Fla., studied theology two years at the Union theological seminary, New York city, and one year at Andover, Mass., graduating in 1861. In August of that year he married Sarah Livingston, daughter of Rev. John W. Olmstead, D. D., of Boston, Mass., and has several children. On Oct. 5, 1861, Mr. Spalding accepted a call to the Congregational church at Vergennes, Vt., where he remained until September, 1864, when he removed to Hartford, Conn., to accept the pastorate of the North church, of which Dr. Horace Bushnell had long been pastor. The church is now known as the Park church. On Sept. 1, 1869, he became pastor of the Congregational church at Dover, N.H. During his seminary course in New York Mr. Spalding contributed various articles to the New York World, of which his brother, James Reed Spalding, was the founder; to the Courier and Enquirer, and to the New York Times. While at Dover he wrote a large number of editorial leaders for the Watchman, and in January, 1881, established the New Hampshire Journal, the state organ of the Congregationalists, and was its editor for several years. He was chairman of the school committee of Dover, president of the trustees of the state normal school, member of the constitutional convention of New Hampshire, in 1877 representative of the city of Dover in the state legislature, and chaplain of that body. He was also trustee of the New Hampshire missionary society, and of the state orphan's home. Mr. Spalding accepted a call to the Franklin street Congregational church at Manchester, N.H., in 1883, and to the First Presbyterian church at Syracuse, N.Y., in 1885, where he has since been elected trustee of Auburn theological seminary, and of Hamilton college, and vice-president of the American tract society. The degree of D.D. was conferred upon him by Darmouth college in 1878; LL.D. by the Syracuse university, 1904, and D.D. by Vermont university, 1907. Dr. Spalding has published several valuable religious and historical works. At the close of fifty years of ministry and a pastorate of twenty-five years of the First Presbyterian church at Syracuse, N.Y., Dr. Spalding has retired with the honor of Pastor Emeritus.

CHARLES FRANCIS BRUSH, Ph. D., LL.D.

Inventor of the Brush Electric Light.

Was born March 17, 1849, in Euclid township, Cuyahoga county, Ohio. His father, Colonel Isaac Elbert Brush, was a manufacturer of woolen goods in Orange county, New York, prior to migration to Ohio in 1846. His mother was Wisner Phillips-Brush. Both parents descend from old lines of American families. One of the early ancestors on the parental side was Thomas Brush, who came to United States from England, and settled near Huntington, Long Island, in 1652. On the maternal side the first representative to settle in this country was Rev. George Phillips, who came with governor Winthrop in 1630 and settled near Boston. Charles Francis Brush obtained his early education in the public schools and graduated from the high school of Cleveland, Ohio. It was very early in his career that he showed a decided preference for electricity and chemistry, as well as engineering, and he graduated with the degree of Mining Engineer from the university of Michigan, in the class of 1869. Later he took the post-graduate degree of M. S. from the same university, and the degree of Ph.D. from the Western Reserve University; later this university conferred on him the degree of LL.D. In the year 1877 Mr. Brush dropped any and everything that he had been interested in, in order to devote himself entirely to the development of electric lighting. In this he was the pioneer, and in 1878 he first gave to the world the now universally used electric arc light. In 1880 the Brush Electric company was formed for the purpose of introducing his inventions and the arc light grew quickly in favor; Cleveland was the first city to use the light for street lighting. In 1891 the light was introduced, and found immeditate favor, in England and all Europe. The business of the Brush electric company soon extended all over the globe. In 1881 Mr. Brush was decorated by the French government, Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, in recognition of his electrical discoveries, and in 1899 the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, awarded him the great Rumford medals, "For the practical development of electric arc lighting." Mr. Brush has now practically retired from business affairs, yet he has an extensive laboratory at his home, and at any time we can expect something wonderful to come from his hands and brain.

Mr. Brush is a member of the Union club (he was president for two terms), also of the university, the country, the euclid and the golf clubs of Cleveland; he is president of the Winous Point shooting club and a member of the University Club of New York. He is a life member of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, also of the Ohio State Board of Commerce, a member of the National Board of Trade, a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, a life member of the British association, a life member of the American society of mechanical engineers, a member of the American institute of electrical engineers, the National electric Light association, the Archæological institute of America, the American historical association, the Franklin institute of Philadelphia, the American chemical society, and the American Philosophical society; received the degree of LL.D. from Kenyon college in 1903. He is president of Cleveland Arcade Company and of The Linde air products company, president of The Cleveland Chamber of commerce, Trustee of the Western reserve university, Adelbert college, University school, Cleveland school of art, Lake View cemetery, Corporator of the Case school of applied science, warden of Trinity cathedral and member of the Smoking fund commission of Cleveland. WILLIAM LISTON BROWN,

Manufacturer,

Was born August 23, 1842, at St. Joseph, Mich., son of Hiram and Jane Reese Tilton (Liston) Brown. His father (1804—83) was born at Groton, N. Y., and settled in Michigan in 1833, being one of its earliest pioneers and prominent in the grain forwarding business. In 1848 he removed to Chicago, Ill., and was for a time one of the members of the Chicago board of trade. His wife was the daughter of William Liston of Michigan. Liberty Brown, the father of Hiram Brown, lived at Groton, N.Y. He raised a company which took a prominent part in the war of 1812 and was actively engaged at Fort Niagara and vicinity in that campaign. William L. Brown went to Chicago when six years of age and received his early education in the Chicago public schools, notably at the Jones public school, which he attended during 1852—56. The following two years he spent at the Garden City Academy. His first business position was as a clerk with the commission house of H. Bacon and company, which he held until the outbreak of the civil war, when he became a member of the famous Chicago battery of light artillery and with which he served until the close of the war. He served with his battery through the Mississippi River, Louisiana, Texas and Alabama campaigns. He was at Vicksburg in the Red River expedition and at the capture of Mobile. From private he rose to quartermaster sergeant, with which distinction he received his honorable discharge at the close of the war. Within a few weeks he had accepted a position with A.A.Meeker as cashier and bookkeeper and in 1871 he became a partner in the firm of A.B. Meeker and company. In 1883 he bought out Mr. Meeker's interest in the business and founded the new widely known firm of Pickands, Brown and company, which since that time has grown to be one of the largest handlers of pig iron and coke in America. In 1904

Pickand, Brown and company was incorporated with an authorized capital of $1,500,000. In 1890 he helped to organize the Chicago Shipbuilding company, which afterward became one of the most important industries of the Great Lakes and in 1889 he was elected president of the American Shipbuilding company, of which he later was chairman of the board of directors. He is president of South Chicago Furnace company, one of the largest manufacturers of pig iron; he is also a director of the First National Bank of Chicago, the First Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago, the Federal Furnace Co., the Lackawanna Steel company, and a large number of lake shipyard and steamship corporations. The life of William L. Brown represents the opening up and development of the pig-iron manufacture of the central West. In forty years of active service in this field he has tended and watched this development as one of the guiding minds, having been connected actively with and interested in over thirty blast furnaces, all situated in the Lake Superior district. For many years a member of the Chicago Board of Trade, and he is a member of the society of naval architects and marine engineers; and the American Iron and Steel institute. His leading club associations are the Chicago, Commercial, Evanston county and a large number of other social organizations in Chicago and other cities. His principal recreations are golf and fishing. While Mr. Brown has not entered largely into public life and has never accepted a public office, he has, however, done much for the public good generally and in Chicago is a member of the board of trustees of Northwestern university and the Chicago Orchestral association. On Sept. 27, 1871, he was married to Catherine, daughter of Dr. Stephen Seymour of Chicago.

JOHN DAVID HANRAHAN,

Physician,

His father removed with his family to New York city in 1850, where the son became a pupil of the public school and the free academy. He then entered the New York Medical University, where his studies were interrupted in 1861 by his entering the U. S. Navy as assistant surgeon. He served in the Potomac flotilla until Aug. 23, 1863, when the vessel on which he was serving was captured, and all on board made prisoners. After six weeks' imprisonment in Richmond he was paroled. While a paroled prisoner in Washington he attended a course of lectures at the medical department of the Georgetown University. In 1864 he was exchanged, and ordered to duty in the north atlantic squadron, where he served until discharged in July, 1865. He received his diploma from the medical department of the New York University in 1867, and practiced in New York city until the spring of 1869, when he removed to Rutland, Vt., and built up an extensive practice. Outside of his professional duties Dr. Hanrahan has been county commissioner, trustee of the village of Rutland, as well as the president of the board, and village president. He was appointed president of the Rutland county pension board in 1885 by president Cleveland. President Harrison continued him in office. He resigned in 1893 to accept the postmastership of Rutland by appointment from president Cleveland. Dr. Hanrahan is a strong Irish nationalist, a potential factor in the Rutland Land league, and a delegate to all the national conventions. He has served as chairman of the Rutland County democratic committee, and as a member of the state committee. He was a delegate to the democratic national conventions af 1884, and chairman of the delegation in 1892. Dr. Hanrahan is a member of the local G. A. R. post, and has served on the staffs of Commanders-in-chief Veazey, Palmer, and Weissert, and has been medical director of the department of Vermont. He is director of the Rutland Hospital (Hotel Dieu), Winooski, Vt. In his religious creed he is a Roman Catholic, worshipping with the congregation of St. Peter's in Rutland. Dr. Hanrahan was married Feb. 12, 1870, to Mary, daughter of Bernard and Elizabeth (Halpin) Riley, of Willingford. She died in April 1882. On Oct. 31, 1883 he was married to Frances, daughter of Dr. John and Mary (Hughes) Keenan, of Rutland. There have been six children born as a result of the second marriage. In 1911 he was elected Surgeon-general of the Grand Army of the Republic.

WALTER DENIS DENEGRE.

He began the practice of law in 1881. In 1881 he was special counsel for the United States before the French and American claims commission. In 1889 he helped suppress the Mafia in New Orleans. He was a leader of the independent democracy in Louisiana; in 1896 was a candidate for United States senator; and it was claimed he was elected. He was a conspicuous leader in the campaign of 1899, which brought about the drainage and sewerage of New Orleans, and which gave that city a pure and clear water plant. He served as a member of the board of administrators of the Tulane university educational fund; is a member of the Boston Club of New Orleans University, the Brook, Harvard and of other clubs of New York and Washington. His home is in New Orleans, and he resides in summer at Manchester, Mass.

LANSING BURROWS,

Clergyman,

Was born in Philadelphia, Pa., Apr. 10, 1843, the son of Rev. J. L. Burrows, well known in the Baptist circles of Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia. Lansing was graduated from Wake Forest College at the age of nineteen, after interrupting his studies by two enlistments, having been for some time a prisoner of war. After graduating he again enlisted, and served until 1864. During his college vacation, when not in the field, he reported the proceedings of the Virginia legislature for the Enquirer, writing later for the Times and the Bulletin, until Gen. Terry suppressed the latter for condemning reconstruction abuses. He then taught for a year in the Stanford Academy. He had experienced religion at fifteen, and determining to enter the ministry, was ordained in 1867, and became pastor of the Stanford Baptist church. He then married Lulie, the daughter of Col. C. H. Rochester, of Danville, Ky., and after preaching in Missouri, accepted a call to Bordentown, N. J., to the church of the gifted Wm. Staughton. After five years' service there he went to Newark, N. J., thence to Lexington, Ky., and in 1883 located in Augusta, Ga. After seventeen years of active service in one of the most prominent churches of this delightful city, he was called to the First Baptist church, Nashville, Tenn., when he became prominent in modern Sunday school efforts, and the author of much Sunday school literature. The loss of his wife and advancing years led him to a quiet retirement to the pleasant city of Americus, Ga., where he remains as part of the First Baptist church. (1911.) In 1871 he received A.M. from Princeton College, and Madison University, N.Y., and D.D. from Bethel College, Ky., in 1883. Dr. Burrows is one of the leading pulpit orators of the country, and has won repute as a powerful minister in the best churches North and South. In religious work he has led. He draws large memberships, and has raised great church funds. He has added hundreds to his present church and increased everyone he has served. He lifted a twenty-five thousand debt from his Newark church, raised five thousand dollars to remodel the Augusta church, and in 1882 secured five thousand dollars at the Southern Baptist convention for the Colosseum church in New Orleans. He has devised new financial and working methods, thus showing himself a model of the modern clergyman, who must be not only a preacher, but also a man of business. Dr. Burrows has a genius for statistics, and was a useful secretary to the Kentucky railroad commission: he prepared the church figures for the convention, and was for seven years editor of the "American Baptist Year Book." He has been, since 1881, the secretary of the Southern Baptist convention, the general body of that denomination in the Southern state.

EUSTATHIUS CHANCELLOR,

Was born August 29, 1854, in Chancellorsville, Spottsylvania county, Va.; son of D. Josephine and Dr. J. Edgar Chancellor. His father was descended from James Chancellor, a gallant officer of the British army, of the seventeenth century, whose sword of honor was long preserved as a family relic, and whose descendant, John Chancellor, was among the first settlers in Westmoreland county, Va. His ancestors on the maternal side were a daughter of Sir William Cary, lord mayor of Bristol, England, and Thomas Anderson, a well-known naval architect, whose descendants came to Glouster county, Va., about 1700. The early education of young Chancellor was obtained through a private governess and at the select schools of his native county at Charlottesville and Locust Dale academy, Va. In October, 1870, he became assistant cashier and bookkeeper to a railroad official at Columbus, Ga., which position he was obliged to give up at the end of fourteen months on account of ill health. He was matriculated at the university of Virginia in 1871-2, entering the classical and civil engineering departments, from which he received several certificates of proficiency. In 1874 he entered the medical department of the university of Virginia, and was graduated with honor June 29, 1876. He next attended the clinics at the university of Pennsylvania for several weeks, and while there received the appointment of prosecutor to the chair of Anatomy in the university of Maryland and clinical assistant in the hospital. Upon matriculating as a student in the university of Maryland, school of medicine, he received his second diploma in 1877. In 1878 he was appointed assistant resident physician in the university hospital, which position he held for twelve months, acting for the greater part of the time as chief physician during the illness and absence of his colleague. He returned to the university of Virginia in 1879 and formed a co-partnership with his father, and became a member of the Medical Society of Virginia. Desiring a wider field of operation, in 1880 he emigrated to St. Louis, Mo., where his ability and enterprise gained him a large and lucrative practice, and where he soon became medical examiner to some twenty of the most popular fraternal and benevolent orders, and a member of the St. Louis Medical Society (1882), and afterwards its corresponding secretary (1883). In 1884 the degree of Master of Arts was conferred upon him by the St. Louis university. He was one of the founders in 1885 of the Beaumont Hospital Medical College, filling the chair of Cutaneous and venereal Diseases, until 1900, when he resigned, having been appointed special examiner and referee for many stock and mutual life and accident insurance companies. In 1886 he became an active member of the American Medical Association, and in the same year was elected supreme medical director of the Legion of Honor, was afterwards appointed supervising medical examiner of the Royal Arcanum for Missouri, and in 1891 was made medical director of the National Guard of Missouri with the rank of lieutenant-colonel. Through his efforts the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States met in St. Louis in 1892, on which occasion Colonel Chancellor was elected its secretary and soon afterwards made editor of the annual publications. In 1895 he became a member of the Medic-Legal Society of New York, and in 1896 the major part of the year found him in Europe visiting hospitals and attending the clinics. In 1902, elected vice-president of American Congress of Tuberculosis, and in 1903 made a member of the American Electro-Therapeutic Association, and since the World's Fair in St. Louis (1904) he has limited his professional routine to the specialty of medical examiner and adjuster for life, accident, health and liability insurance companies, for which he holds the expert position for more than a score of such organizations. He is an active master Mason, a Knight of Pythias, Knight templar, a noble of the Mystic Shrine, Scottish rite Mason, and Benevolent order of Elks. Among Dr. Chancellor's many contributions to the medical press are: "Researches upon the Treatment of Delirium Tremens" (1881); "Successful Operations for the Deformity of Burnt Wrist" (1881); "Treatment of Diabetes Insipidus" (1883); "Gonorrhoel Articular Rheumatism" (1883); "Syphilis in Men" (1884); "Causes of Sexual Depravity and a Remedy" (1885); etc. He also published "The Correlation of Physical and Vital Forces" (1887); "Woman in her Social Sphere" (1885); "Marriage Philosophy" (1886); "The Pacific Slope and Its Scenery" (1890); and numerous valuable papers on special cases that have come under his personal observation and treatment.

FREDERICK O. HAMMER,

Minnesota has among her citizens none of whom she has more reason to be proud than of the sturdy and thrifty Teutonic race, who have done much to build up her present prosperity. Jacob Hammer, the father of the subject of this sketch, was a saddler and harnessmaker in Germany, in moderate circumstances. He came to this country in 1849, settling at St. Paul in 1856. Frederick O. was born at St. Paul August 11, 1865. He had only the benefit of a common school education in the public schools of St. Paul, and later a course at a commercial college. He started in business early in life as register clerk in the postoffice at St.Paul, and later he entered the insurance business, and was for six years the assistant secretary of the Hail and Storm Insurance company of Minnesota. He then became attached successively to the Capitol Building society, the Minnesota Savings and Building association, acting in the capacity of secretary of all three concerns. In 1881 he became associated with Congressman A. R. Kiefer and has been ever since directly and indirectly connected with him in various institutions and enterprises. Mr. Hammer also has charge of a number of estates, having nearly half a million dollars under his care. He is now secretary and Treasurer of the Paragon Consolidated Mining company, mines located in Idaho, which gives promise of being one of the great silver and lead mines of the west adding another enterprise of his long list of success. Mr. Hammer is a Republican in politics and a member of the St. Paul association of commerce, Junior Pioneer association, of Ramsey county, Minn.; St. Paul Lodge No. 3, A. F. and A. M.; Summit Chapter, No. 45, R. A. M.; Damascus Commons, No. 1. K. T.; Minnesota Consistory, A. and A. S. Rite, No. 1; Osman Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., and Okodo Lodge No. 9, K. of P. He was married July 27, 1911, to Clara Hansen of W. St. Paul, Minn.

Was born February 15, 1842, at Worthington, Hampshire county, Mass., and spent his early years on a small farm in the most sterile and mountainous portion of that region. He kept along with his classes in the district school by studying in the evenings, as he was compelled much of the time to engage in manual labor during school hours. By hard work and rigid economy he earned enough money to pay for his food, clothing and tuition while attending an academy at Wilbraham, Mass., and in 1860 entered upon the law course at Yale college. To save time and expense, he employed a private tutor to instruct him in the academic course. But the war of the rebellion interrupted his studies in 1862, and took him to the field as captain of infantry. He afterward served as a staff officer in the artillery service. At the close of the war he graduated from the Albany university and went to Minnesota. He began the practice of law there, having completed his legal course by private study while in the army. In 1867 he represented the state of Minnesota as its emigration agent to Germany. In 1868 he was engaged as foreign correspondent to the New York 'Tribune," and the year following as the traveling correspondent of the Boston "Traveller," and in 1870 was sent by these two journals to different countries of Asia, and made the entire circuit of the globe. He is a writer of singular brilliancy and power. In 1870 he published his first book, "Why and How the Chinese Emigrate." It has been followed by many others of a historical and biographical character, including the life of Spurgeon and "Acres of Diamonds." He was the friend and traveling companion of Bayard Taylor, and his biography of that poet and traveler had an extensive sale. After practicing law for a time in Boston he was ordained to the ministry in 1879, and in 1881 became pastor of Grace Baptist church in Philadelphia. The church at once entered upon a career of great prosperity. His eloquence, his marvelous descriptive powers, his great earnestness and devotion to the interests of his people, rapidly increased the membership of the church and his influence in Philadelphia. The church from a mission increased to the largest Baptist church in America. In 1891 the temple was completed on North Broad street, with a seating capacity of 4,000 people. In 1888 Dr. Conwell founded Temple college, now the Temple university, with two large hospitals and 3,800 students. Dr. Conwell has been remarkably successful as a public lecturer ever since 1860. His "Silver Crown; or, Born a King," "Acres of Diamonds," "Lessons of Travel," "Heroism of a Private Life," are models of lyceum lectures, and have given him a national reputation as a platform orator. They are unique and are filled with good sense, brilliant with new suggestions, and always inspire his hearers to noble life and deeds. Dr. Conwell has kept in touch with the spirit of church extension, and his influence is felt outside his own congregation.

FRANK MELVILLE JOYCE,

Insurance Manager,

Was born at Covington, Indiana, March 18, 1862. His father was Bishop Isaac W. Joyce, one of the most distinguished of the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church. F. M. Joyce's mother was Miss Carrie Bosserman, of an old Pennsylvanian Dutch family. Bishop Joyce was of Irish descent. Colonel Joyce graduated from Indiana Asbury university, now De Pauw university. He took the gold medal of his class for mathematics. He was major of the cadet batalion, and captain of the famous Asbury Cadets, who won the first national artillery prize at Indianapolis in 1882, over many competing batteries from all over the United States. After graduation he went to Cincinnati, Ohio, and became paying teller of the Queen City National Bank. Five years later he resigned to accept the general agency of the Provident Life and Trust company, at Cincinnati. He was associated with that company until 1890 when he entered the services of the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance company, of Newark, New Jersey, as district agent at Cincinnati. Having established himself as a successful and entirely reliable insurance man, Colonel Joyce, after five years with the Mutual Benefit, was transferred to Minneapolis as state agent of that company for Minnesota and the Dakotas. Colonel Joyce's title is by no means an honorary one only. He was a commissioned officer of the Second Battery Ohio National Guard. It was while in this position, at the time of the famous Court House riots in Cincinnati in 1884, that he rendered such service as to receive the special commendation of governor Hoadly. In 1889 Colonel Joyce organized the Avon Rifles from among the best young men of Avondale, a suburb of Cincinnati, where he resided. He also had the honor of being a member of the personal staff of governor McKinley, of Ohio, which position he held until he left the state.

While in Cincinnati, Colonel Joyce was quite prominently connected with the musical affairs of the city, and was president of the Orpheus Club, the leading male chorus in a city famed for its musical culture, from the time of its organization until his removal to Minneapolis. Since coming to Minneapolis he has made a large circle of friends both in the social and business communities of the city. He is a member of the Hennepin avenue Methodist church, also the Knights of Pythias, various masonic orders and is a thirty-second degree Scottish Rite Mason. He also has been an honorary member of the army and navy military service institute. Colonel Joyce has been actively interested in the automobile game from its early history. For two years he was president of the Minneapolis Automobile club. He then organized the Minnesota State Automobile association and was its president for two years, when he was made vice-president of the American Automobile association, the national organization—a position which he now holds. He is associated with the leading social clubs—being president of the Interlachen County club—and a member of the Minneapolis club and the Commercial club. He was at one time president of the Apollo club—a well known male chorus and is now an honorary life member of that organization. For several years he has been president of the Northwestern Alumni Association of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity. He also was president of the Asbury Methodist hospital of Minneapolis. On March 20th, 1883, he was married to Miss Jessie F. Birch, daughter of the late Honorable Jesse Birch, a prominent lawyer of Bloomington, Illinois. They have four children, Arthur Reamy, Carolyn, Wilbur Birch, and Helen.

REUBEN WEBSTER MILLSAPS,

Banker of Jackson, Miss.

Was born May 30, 1833, in Copiah county, Miss. The parent stock originated in Ireland and Wales, while his parents, natives of Georgia, were early settlers in Mississippi. Reuben began life in the work of a farm and in attendance at the public schools, going to Hanover college in Indiana at the age of seventeen. After two years there, he attended Asbury (now De Pauw) university at Greencastle, Ind., and graduated in 1854. Returning to the South, he taught school two years and then studied law at Harvard, graduating in 1858. Legal practice in Pine Bluff, Ark., occupied him until the outbreak of the Civil War, when he entered the Confederate army as a private, rising during four years of service to be lieutenant colonel, and being wounded at Shiloh and Nashville. Then—illustrating the vigor and spirit of the new South—Colonel Millsaps began life entirely anew by engaging in hauling cotton to market with a wagon and two mules, which a comrade and he had been allowed by General Grant to bring home. With his earnings, he opened a store at Brookhaven, Miss. This business, carried on with great success for fifteen years, ended in Colonel Millsaps engaging in a wholesale grocery trade in St. Louis, from which he retired in 1884 with a fortune. Extended travel in Europe followed, and in 1886 he established The Capital State Bank of Jackson, and has since devoted his time mainly to banking, being also president of the Merchants' and Planters' bank in Hazelhurst, Miss.; director in the First National bank in Vicksburg and the First National bank in Greenville, Miss., and a stockholder in many other institutions of that class. Some other investments, including real estate, have added to his resources. Colonel Millsaps founded Millsaps college in the city of Jackson, giving nearly $250,000 for the purpose. He was president of the Southern Chautauqua assembly at Mont Eagle, Tenn. fifteen years and also shows philantropic spirit by interest in other enterprises. He is a national republican in politics, a Methodist in religion, a self-made man, and noted for honor and high character. He is vice-president of the Capital National bank, Jackson, Miss.; vice-president of the Citizens' Savings Bank and Trust company, Jackson, Miss.; president of the Merchants and Planters bank, Hazelhurst, Miss.; president of the Bank of Forest, Fortsa, Miss.; director in the First National bank, Vicksburg, Miss., and First National bank, Greenville, Miss. He is the founder of Millsaps college, situated in Jackson, giving nearly two hundred and fifty thousand dollars to that institution. He was president of the Mont Eagle, Tenn., Chautauqua assembly for 15 years; now treasurer of the American Red Cross for the state of Mississippi, and trustee and treasurer of Millsaps college. He is also director of Brookhaven Bank and Trust company, Brookhaven, Miss., and director in Bank of Georgetown, Georgetown, Miss., and a stockholder in numerous other banks in the state; also trustee of Vanderbilt university, Nashville, Tenn.

CHARLES ROLLIN OTIS,

The elder of the two sons of Elisha C. Otis, was born April 29, 1835, in Troy, N.Y. During his youth he attended school at Halifax, Vt., and at Albany, N.Y. From early boyhood he manifested a great fondness for mechanics of every kind. At the age of thirteen he began his apprenticeship as machinist under his father. At seventeen he was greatly interested in steam engines and received the position of engineer in a large manufactory at Yonkers, N.Y., of which his father was superintendent of machinery. Earlier he was very ambitious to become an engineer on one of the great ocean liners. He was a young man of determined purpose and doubtless but for the removal of his father about this time to Yonkers, N.Y., he would have accomplished it. He accompanied and assisted his father in his early operations in Yonkers. He was quick to see the possibilities of the elevator (a sketch of the Otis Bros. and company elevator works is given in the chapter on "Yonkers Industries") that his father had invented, and urged him to devote himself exclusively to the making and introducing, etc., throughout the world. Mr. Otis manifested the same integrity, business ability and genius of invention as his father. He has been closely connected with various large business interests, also real estate improvements of this city. He was formerly a member of the Westminster church, and for twelve years was superintendent of the Sunday school and an elder of the church. He was chairman of the committee at the time of the building of the Westminster Presbyterian church. For the last fourteen years he has been connected with the First Presbyterian church. He was married August 28, 1861, to Caroline F. Boyd. They have had no children, but have reared and educated several orphans and others. Mr. Otis was appointed a member of the board of education in 1886, and served continuously for twenty-four years. For several years he was chairman of the committee on teachers and instruction, and also a member of other important committees at different times. A very considerable part of his time was devoted to visiting and inspecting schools. While a member of the board of education he endeavored to his utmost to get and finally succeeded in getting fireproof stairways in all of the twenty public schools of the city of Yonkers, and persistently urged regular weekly firedrills of the children. He is a steadfast friend of the teachers and children and believes that the public schools should be lifted to the highest standard; to that end he devoted much of his time and efforts. He has been a great traveler, having visited Europe several times. His published letters during his visits abroad are of some interest. Mr. Otis is an extensive reader, and owner of a valuable special library, including both a classical collection and a wide range of scientific subjects.

FRANKLIN MURPHY,

Manufacturer of Newark, N. J.,

Was born January 3, 1846, in Jersey City, N.J. His first American ancestor, Robert Murphy, came from England in 1766, and that Robert's son, Robert, born in Connecticut, served in the Revolution in the Bergen county, N.J., militia. Robert, jr., had a son, William, who served in the War of 1812, and his grandson, Franklin Murphy, continued the military history of the family in the War of the Rebellion. The son of Williams Hays Murphy and Elizabeth Hagar, his wife, Franklin Murphy came, with his parents, to Newark when he was ten years old, and has resided there ever since. While at the Newark academy, at the age of sixteen, he enlisted in the 13th New Jersey volunteers, and saw active service in the army of the Potomac and under General Sherman until the close of the war. Mr. Murphy was first lieutenant when he was mustered out. This patriotic duty finished, Mr.

Murphy entered business, and in 1865 founded the firm of Murphy and company, varnish manufacturers, of Newark. Since then his time, energies and great business capacity have been devoted, in the main, to the promotion of this trade. The Murphy varnishes are now sold all over the world, and the Murphy Varnish company, which succeeded the firm in 1891, and of which Mr. Murphy is president, has factories in Newark, Chicago and Cleveland, and transacts an enormous business. Mr. Murphy has had happy relations with those in his employment, and has been a sincere advocate of such measures in business and in government, as would best secure liberal wages and steady occupation for workingmen. Socially, Franklin Murphy has many pleasant relations in a private and public way, both in this country and abroad, and is a member of many organizations, among them the Union League and Century clubs of New York city, the Union League club of Chicago, the Loyal Legion, the Essex and Essex County Country clubs of Newark, the Sons of the American Revolution, of which he has been president general, and other associations. His residence in Newark and a summer home at Mendham are elegant houses of genial hospitality. Mr. Murphy has continued by activities in politics an interest in public affairs, which began by service as a soldier. He has served as member of the Newark common council and of the New Jersey legislature, is now chairman of the republican state committee, and is active in each campaign. He was governor of New Jersey 1902-1905. In business associations he has had the usual responsibilities placed upon successful men in connection with public institutions, banks and societies. Happily gifted in manner, disposition and taste, enterprising and original in business ideas, personally liked most by those who know him best, and as frank in declaring his principles as he is sincere in maintaining them, his career has been rounded with success and marked by the appreciation of men whose good opinion is best worth having. Mr. Murphy was married in Newark in 1868 to Janet Colwell, daughter of Israel D. Colwell and Catherine C. G. Hoghland, and his two children are Franklin, jr., Helen M., now Mrs. Wm. B. Kinney.

ERNEST RICHARD KROEGER,

Was born in St. Louis, Mo., August 10, 1862. His father, one of the most eminent literary men in the West, superintended his early musical education, after which he had as instructors several celebrated musicians, notably W. Goldner of Paris in composition, and Charles Kunkel in pianoforte playing. Up to his twenty-third year Mr. Kroeger was employed in mercantile business, but in the meantime he prosecuted his musical studies with great energy and enthusiasm, finally entering upon a musical career on November 1, 1885. As a pianist he has been heard frequently in concerts, and in conjunction with Mr. Charles Kunkel has made a great specialty of duo playing upon two pianofortes. In his recitals he has played over five hundred pieces by memory. He was for eight years organist of Trinity Episcopal church, and has been for some time organist of the Church of the Messiah (Unitarian), both of St. Louis. In the latter church Mr. Kroeger has conducted a fine chorus choir, which has rendered works by such composers as Beethoven, Bach, Handel, Mendelssohn, Mozart, Gounod, Spohr, Dvorak, Haydn, Schubert, Weber and others. As a conductor, in addition to the chorus above mentioned he has had charge of the musical features of the McCullough club, is director of the "Amphion" male chorus, and for ten years led the Morning Choral club, composed of fifty ladies. Mr. Kroeger served as president of the Music Teachers National association (1896-1897), and in 1904 he was appointed master of programs of the bureau of music at the St. Louis World's Fair. For his services in the latter capacity the French government elected him an officer of the Academy. But it is as a composer that Mr. Kroeger has achieved his greatest reputation. His works, published and unpublished, are in nearly all branches of music. They include many pianoforte pieces, songs, church music, and other smaller compositions. In larger fields, Mr. Kroeger has written a great deal of chamber music, notably his "Quintet for Pianoforte and Strings," given with great success at the Music Teachers' National association at Detroit in 1890, also a "Symphony for Orchestra," "Four Symphonic Overtures," and a "Pianoforte Concerto." One eminent musical critic says: "His work is based upon the modern romantic style, such as Raff, Schwarwenka, and Moszkowski have been developing. The compositions by Mr. Kroeger prove him to be a thorough artist, that his knowledge of counterpoint is profound, and that he does not need to wander about for the effects he wishes to produce. His compositions are full of sparkling originality and are artistically developed. Mr. Kroeger, in his many beautiful works, shows that he is able to use the modern school and even some of the Wagnerian effects without forgetting that a composer's individuality must be kept uppermost in all his writings. He is an American writer who not only possesses contrapuntal skill, but a decided gift for melody."

JOSEPH D. HOUSTON,

GENERAL HORACE PORTER,

Orator and man of affairs,

Was born in Huntingdon, Pa., April 15, 1837. His ancestors were long identified with the early history of Pennsylvania. His grandfather, Andrew Porter, born in Worcester, Pa., September 24, 1743, and the proprietor of a scientific school in Philadelphia, left the arts of peace in 1775 to join the forces of the American Revolution, as captain of marines and then of artillery, served entirely through the war, and was promoted from rank to rank until he became colonel of the Fourth continental artillery, and later brigadier general. After the war he was commissioned major general of militia and, after service as commissioner for surveying the boundary lines between Pennsylvania and Virginia, declined the positions of brigadier general in the regular army and secretary of war, tendered by President Madison. David R. Porter, son of the latter, an iron master, located in Huntingdon, served for a number of years in the senate of Pennsylvania and was twice governor of the state. Horace, youngest son of David R. Porter, was educated at the scientific school of Harvard university and graduated from the West Point military academy in 1860. He served in the field during the civil war and during the four years of that struggle rose through every grade of the regular army up to that of brevet brigadier general. Promotion by brevet was accorded to him on six different occasions for "gallant and meritorious services." He served during the latter part of the war upon General Grant's staff and as private secretary to General Grant when the latter was president. Since the war he has become conspicuous in civil life by his management of important and successful business enterprises and by display of ability in the field of oratory and literature. He has been president of several railroad companies, vice-president of the Pullman Car company, and a director in a number of prominent financial institutions. He is president of the Union League club, the Grant monument association, the Society of the Army of the Potomac, and the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, commander of the New York commandery of the Loyal Legion and of the Washington Post, G. A. R.; vice-president of the chamber of commerce, and a member of the Metropolitan, University, Lotos, Grolier, Century, Players', Lawyers', Union League, and Authors' clubs of New York city, and many other organizations, including geographical and historical societies. In 1894 he received the degree of LL.D. from Union and Williams colleges, and from Princeton and Harvard universities. In 1864 he married Miss McHarg of Albany, and to them have been born Horace M., Clarence, William and Elsie Porter. General Porter has in recent years become one of the favorite after-dinner and public orators of New York city. He is greatly in demand and has delivered orations on many occasions of public moment as well as innumerable speeches and lectures upon other occasions, social, literary, patriotic and commercial. He speaks several of the modern languages, and among his literary works are a number of books and magazine articles, which have commanded public attention. He secured the congressional medal of honor for a conspicuous act of gallantry at the battle of Chickamauga; was ambassador to France from 1897 to 1905. Received from France the decoration of the grand cross of the Legion of Honor. After a search of six years he recovered the body of John Paul Jones in a forgotten cemetery at his own expense, and received for this a unanimous vote of thanks from congress and the privilege of the floor of both houses for life.

CHARLES ADOLF SCHIEREN

Merchant and Philanthropist,

Was born in Rhenish Prussia, Germany. He was educated in public school in Germany until 1856, when at the age of fourteen he came to the United States. He learned the cigar trade and assisted his father in the business in Brooklyn, until 1864, when he began as a clerk in the leather belting business of Philip F. Pasquay in New York City. In 1868 he established himself in the belting business with a small capital of his own savings and from that enterprise has grown the present firm of Chas. A. Schieren company in New York with many branch houses in this country and Hamburg, Germany, and tanneries in Brooklyn, N.Y., and Bristol, Tenn. Although the scene of Mr. Schieren's entire business career has been in Manhattan, in what is familiarly known in the leather trade as "The Swamp,", his residence for the entire period has been in Brooklyn and it is in this city that his social and political interests are closely identified. In politics, he has always been a prominent republican. For three years he was president of the Brooklyn Young Republican club. He introduced the election district plan which caused the overthrow of the democratic party and in 1893 the election of Mr. Schieren to the mayoralty by a tremendous majority. He turned his big business over to other hands and devoted his entire time to the duties of his high office. His administration was characterized by a wise and conservative management of the city's affairs which gave him a national reputation. Through his influence and energetic advocacy the bill was passed by the legislature of 1895 authorizing the construction of the new East River (Williamsburg) bridge; the initial plans were made and the work started. By the addition of five new parks, Mr. Schieren's administration doubled the area of the parks of the City of Brooklyn; the longest of these, Forest Park, comprises 576 acres and is noted for its natural beauty and fine view of both the ocean and Long Island Sound. Dyker Meadow Park, containing 150 acres, is also of great importance, as it embraces several thousand feet ocean front; final plans were adopted and riparian plans secured for the Shore driveway, which when completed will be one of the finest in the world. He also was one of the founders of the Brooklyn Museum and laid corner stone during his occupancy of the administration as mayor for this maginficent building on the park slope. He was appointed and served on many important commissions, notably by Governor Black as chairman of the State Commerce Commission, also was appointed by Governor Roosevelt as a member of the New York Charter Revision Committee and is actively engaged in many charitable organizations and is now president of the Brooklyn Academy of Music which is considered one of the finest structures in this country devoted to grand opera, music and art. Mr. Schieren has been successful in all his undertakings, is public spirited, clean charactered and ever ready to support by his means and influence any enterprise which has for its purpose the betterment and welfare of the community, of which he has been an honored member for over half a century and is a splendid specimen of American citizenship. Mr. Schieren is a prominent layman of the Lutheran church of Americans; he made an endowment of a fund of $43,000 — to the Mecklenburg college of Allentown, Pa., the interest to be devoted to aid young men of moderate means for the study of the ministry; also made an endowment of $50,000 to Mount Airy Seminary at Mt. Airy, Philadelphia, to create a professorship of post-graduate course. Mr. Schieren is an active member of the Chamber of Commerce of New York and served on many prominent committees. He was one of the most earnest advocates of the widening and deepening of the Erie canal for the benefit of the waterborne commerce of the port of New York.

JOSIAH VAN KIRK THOMPSON,

Banker,

Was born in Fayette county, Pa., February 15, 1854, son of Jasper Markle and Eliza (Caruthers) Thompson, grandson of Andrew Finley Thompson, who served with distinction in the war of 1812, and great-grandson of William Thompson, a revolutionary patriot of Pennsylvania. His father, a native of Kentucky, was also a banker, who presided for twenty years over the institution of which his son was afterwards the head. He was brought up on his father's farm, and aside from the Christian teaching of his parents, he attributes much of his success and happiness in life to the habits of industry and a love for work that he acquired in his boyhood. After a common school education he was prepared for college at Madison College, and was graduated at Washington and Jefferson College in 1871 at the early age of seventeen, the youngest student in the college. As an illustration of the young man's indomitable energy and determination to secure an education, it should be mentioned that at the close of school terms he traveled over thirty-six miles to his home, often leaving school at four o'clock in the afternoon, and being actively at work in the harvest field by nine o'clock the following morning. After three years of farm life, concurrent with his college course, he entered the First National Bank of Uniontown in November, 1871, which had been established as a private bank in the year of his birth, and nationalized in 1864, and of which his father was an original director. Beginning at the bottom of the ladder, he first acted as janitor, kept all the books of the bank and served as a general clerk as well, and in less than five months thereafter he became teller. He was made cashier in 1877, and upon the death of his father, twelve years later, he succeeded him to the presidency. Mr. Thompson is in the strictest sense a temperance man, and never would engage in his bank an employe who used liquor or tobacco in any form. He firmly maintained this position against the ruling sentiment of the board of directors, his opinion being that the continued use of either affected the power of both mind and body. Neither are any of his employes under bond, saying that he "would not have an employe in this bank who had to give a bond." He puts his faith in their honesty, and places reliance in their integrity. How successful Mr. Thompson has been as a banker is shown by a comparison of the condition of the bank when he became its cashier, and its present standing. With a surplus fund then of $20,181; deposits, $14,255; loans and discounts, $176,186, it rapidly forged ahead until it now 1911 has a surplus of $1,500,000, and carries deposits of nearly three million dollars, with a capital stock of but one hundred thousand dollars. While remarkably successful as a banker, Mr. Thompson has probably won greater wealth from the enormous coal operations he has conducted for many years. He owns or controls thousands of acres in Fayette, Washington, and Greene counties, Pa., and in West Virginia; in fact he is said to control over one-half of all the undeveloped portion of the great Pittsburg coal deposit. He is one of the most prominent men of Pennsylvania, noted alike for his business acumen, and munificent generosity. He was married December 11, 1879, to Mary, daughter of John Anderson of Geneseo, Ill. She died in 1896, leaving two sons, Andrew A. and John R., the former a member of the state legislature, and the latter in charge of his father's estate, within a mile of Uniontown. He was again married August 11, 1903, to Mrs. B. A. (Gardner) Hawes.

He is now principal of Goodwill Academy and also still pastor of the Goodwill church.

HERBERT EVERETT TUTHERLY,

Soldier and Educator,

Was born at Claremont, N.H., April 5, 1848. His ancestors were English, and among the early settlers of New England. His preliminary education was acquired in the schools of his native village and at Kimball union academy at Meriden, N.H. He was appointed a cadet at the U. S. military academy at West Point, N.Y., in 1868, from which institution he was graduated in 1872. He was then commissoned a second lieutenant in the 1st U. S. cavalry and promoted to the grade of first lieutenant, 1st cavalry, in 1879, and to the grade of captain in the same regiment, December 17, 1890. He received the honorary degree of A.M. from the university of Vermont in 1885. From 1881 to 1885 he served at the university of Vermont as professor of military science and tactics, under detail by the war department, and from 1889 to 1892 filled the corresponding chair at Cornell university. In 1881 he published Score Book and Suggestions for Riflemen, and in 1894 Elementary Treatice upon the Art of War, which was revised and republished 1898. He was promoted to major in the 11th U. S. cavalry, 1901, and lieutenant-colonel in the 9th U. S. cavalry, 1905. His active military service extended among nearly all of the Indians of the United States, west of the Mississippi river, for the period from 1872-1900. He was with troops in Alaska 1900-1901. Was engaged in the Philippine insurrection, and commanded a squadron of the 1st U. S. cavalry at the battle of Santiago de Cuba, in the Spanish-American war, 1898. Was recommended for brevet major for gallantry in action at San Juan Hill, Cuba. He commanded the military post at the Sioux Indian Reservation in Dakota, 1898-1900, and the post of Jefferson barracks and recruiting depot at St. Louis, 1905-1906. Served in the inspector-general's department of the United States army 1900-1905, as one of the inspector-generals. He was placed upon the retired list of the United States army, on his own application, after thirty-eight years' service, 1906. Assigned by the president on duty with the organized militia of New Hampshire, 1906-1911. Appointed brigadier-general and adjutant-general of New Hampshire, 1911.

CHARLES THEODORE HOOK,

He has been a trustee of the Illinois state hospital at South Bartonville, Ill.; and was commissioner from Illinois to the Pan-American exposition held in Buffalo, N.Y. He is now president of the Burlington Elevator company of Peoria, Ill.; is vice-president of the Peoria Railway Terminal; and is identified with various other corporations.

THOMAS BARLOW WALKER,

Lumberman, Philanthropist,

Was born in Xenia, Green county, Ohio, on February 1, 1840, the son of Platt Bayless and Anstis Barlow Walker. He received his preliminary education in the common schools and at the hands of his mother, who was early bereft of her husband. When in his sixteenth year he entered the Baldwin university, Berea, Ohio, where he studied for several terms, devoting his spare time to his first occupation in the wood and timber business, and later was a commercial traveler. While working days in the woods, he studied nights and Sundays, and when on the road carried his books and devoted all spare time to them. In this way he became in a measure self-educated, and particularly in the higher branches of mathematics and science. His business knowledge was gained by travel and experience, contact with business men, study of business methods, solving of big problems, and the slamming up against the world in general. Mr. Walker covered Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, and adjoining states in his business tours, and settled in Minneapolis in 1862. He was then in his twenty-second year. On December 19, 1863, he married at Berea, Ohio, Harriet G. Hulet, a daughter of a former employer, who was one of the builders of Baldwin university. Six sons and two daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. Walker, of whom six are still living and the five sons are all in the lumber and timber business with their father. This business Mr. Walker learned by actual experience and exhaustive study and research from the roots to the branches. He is one of the largest owners of lumber and timber interests in the United States. Apart from his vast lumber interests, Mr. Walker has been for half a century closely identified with the up-building of the great Northwest; a pioneer who has progressed; a leader in the vanguard of Western civilization. He has aided materially in carving out a new empire for the benefit and blessing of all mankind. As a resident of Minneapolis, Mr. Walker has been closely identified with its every growth — with every branch of its commercial development. Public spirited to the full, he has given amply to all public and semi-public enterprises. In the world at large, Mr. Walker is best known for his interest and activity in art, science, education and in the church. He has gathered one of the finest and most comprehensive art collections in the world. It comprehends a large series of galleries, of paintings, ancient and modern, foreign and American. It stands alone in one respect in distinction from all other galleries in Europe and America, in that only examples of the highest merit are selected, as against the universal custom in all galleries, public and private, of admitting "examples" which are considered genuine works of great masters, where the paintings are of themselves inferior or uninteresting or time-injured productions; and the innumerable testimonials of those who have visited the gallery are along the same lines with those of Joseph Jefferson, and President Jordan, of Leland Stanford university, that every picture on the walls is genuine, and of the highest order of merit and worthy of a place in the finest collection. The magnificent collection of Chinese porcelains, and bronzes, is equal in art merit to those of any public or private gallery. The jades, crystals and other hard stones, and the old Persian potteries and stonewares, have no equals in any gallery in the world. The ancient glass, potteries, enamels, and ancient bead necklaces, of Babylonia, Syria, Egypt and Greece are together perhaps the finest in any known collection. His art gallery attached to the home, consist now of nine rooms of sky-lighted galleries, two of which are together about one hundred feet in length and the other seven running about eighteen feet in length. At the public library, the art and museum rooms are each one hundred and forty feet in length. This art gallery is almost exclusively filled with his paintings, porcelains, etc., and the Museum of the Academy of Science is also quite largely filled with his collected examples of ancient art of many kinds. Mr. Walker's art gallery at his home is open to the public on all days of the week except Sundays. No cards or admission fees are required for any days of the week nor any charge for catalogues. It is the only entirely free gallery known.

His residence and gallery are in the central business portion of the city, on large grounds surrounded by great oaks and elms and the long fronts on two streets are fenced with steel benches, which in summer are constantly occupied both day and night, as in a public park.

Mr. Walker was the prime mover and orginator of the public library, which includes in its design the Art galleries and the museum of the Academy of science. As a recognition of his part in building the library, he has been annually elected as president of the library board since its foundation twenty-five years since. He has been the principal factor in building up the Academy of Science, of which he has been the presiding officer for many years, and largely responsible for the progress which it has made.

Mr. Walker has been most helpfully interested in the work of the Y. M. C. A., in Minneapolis and to a large extent in the university and the state, and has been for many years the Northwestern member of the national committee of the Y. M. C. A., which is one of the most important and useful committees in the world.

Mr. Walker is a member of many of the most prominent scientific and educational associations of the United States. With all his extensive business interests, which he never neglects, he still devotes a large fractional part of the day and evening to studying the problems of the times, and in writing many articles for publication and sometimes in preparing and delivering addresses, particularly before the Y. M. C. A. and the church and business associations. His private library is one of the most comprehensive and largest, covering particularly the fields of social, political, industrial, religious and art subjects.

CHARLES BUCKNER HUDGINS,

Clergyman and Author of Rome, Ga.,

Was born May 26, 1853, in Portsmouth, Va. He was educated at the Virginia military institute and at the university of the south. He was for a while engaged in mercantile pursuits; then became a clergyman; and is now rector of St. Peters Episcopal church of Rome, Ga. He is the author of The Concert, a novel.

JED L. WASHBURN,

Lawyer of Duluth, Minnesota,

Was born in Montgomery county, Indiana, December 26, 1856. Son of Christopher C. and Julia A. (Showen) Washburn. Mr. Washburn's father was a native of southern Ohio and his mother a native of Kentucky. They were pioneer homestead settlers in southern Minnesota when the subject of this sketch was but six months old. They are both now deceased. Mr. Washburn obtained an academic education, but his education has been mainly self acquired. His reading has been as general as a busy life would permit.

He taught school and worked on the farm in his youth. Studied law in Mankato, Minnesota, with the late Hon. M. J. Severance, long one of the leading lawyers and jurists of Minnesota, and practiced for ten years, until 1890 at Mankato and since then at Duluth. His practice for many years has extended over a wide range of territory, being engaged largely in corporation and railroad work. His firm, Washburn, Baily & Mitchell, with a corps of assistants, transact annually a large volume of important business. They represent many railroad, financial and industrial corporations and firms. The members of this firm are also personally interested in many concerns engaged in developing the resources of Minnesota. Mr. Washburn is president and director of the Northern National Bank of Duluth, the Boston & Duluth Farm Land company, the Spalding Hotel company, the American Land & Timber company, the Minnesota and Oregon Land and Timber company, the Riverside Land company, and some other companies. He is vice-president and a director of the Alworth-Washburn company, the Alworth-Stephens company, the Royal Mineral association Oneida Realty company, Union Match company, Northern Shoe company, and an officer and director in several other local companies. He has served much on educational and charitable boards, and since its establishment, has been the resident director of the State Normal School at Duluth. He was an old line Democrat, but for a number of years has acted with the republican party, although not often taking an active part in politics, having always avoided political office. He was married in May 1882 to Alma J. Pattee, a graduate of and former teacher in the state normal school at Mankato. Mrs. Washburn is a native of Wisconsin, but of New England parentage. Mr. Washburn is a member of the Kitchi Gammi Club the Northland Country Club (vice-president) of Duluth Minneapolis Club of Minneapolis, Minnesota Club of St. Paul and Chicago Club of Chicago. He has been president of the State Bar Association. He is not a member of any religious or fraternal society. He has avoided public speaking in a great measure but has, nevertheless, often delivered short addresses upon educational and other public questions. His home is in Hunter's Park, Duluth, and he has also a winter home in Tyron, North Carolina. Business address—Alworth Bldg., Duluth, Minnesota.

He is now engaged in the general practice of law in Kansas; is General Attorney for the Union Pacific Railway company at Topeka, Kans.; and has filled various positions of trust and honor.

JOHN HERY TIHEN,

Bishop of Lincoln,

Was born in Oldenburg, Ind. He was rector of the cathedral at Wichita; and chancellor of the diocese of Wichita. He is now Bishop of Lincoln, at Lincoln, Neb.

WILLIAM TOPPING MERRY,

United States Army Officer,

Was born in New York. In 1895 he was appointed from New York as a cadet to the United States military academy at West Point; and in 1899 graduated from that institution. He was at once made second lieutnant in the twenty-third regiment United States infantry; in 1900 he was promoted to first lieutenant in the first regiment United States infantry; and in 1901 was transferred to the twenty-third regiment United States infantry. He became captain in the ninth regiment United States infantry; an was stationed at Fort Sam Houston (Texas); and is now serving in the Philippines.

DAVID MORTON EDWARDS,

President of Penn College of Oskaloosa, Iowa,

Was born October 16, 1871, in Earlham, Iowa. He was educated at Penn College, the University of Chicago and at Boston University; and has received the degrees of A.B. and Ph.D. He commenced educational work in 1889; and since 1908 has been president of Penn College of Oskaloosa, Iowa.

FRANK PIERCE HILL,

Librarian,

Was born at Concord, N. H., Aug. 22, 1855. He attended the public school in his native town until, at the age of seventeen he entered Dartmouth, and was graduated from that institution with the class of 1876. He returned to Concord and was employed by his uncle in the hardware business, removing in 1878 to Lowell, Mass., where,

two years later, he married the daughter of Dr. Robert Wood. In 1881 he was elected librarian of the city library, and since that time has continued to follow the profession. He classified and arranged the 30,000 volumes in the Lowell city library. In 1885 he was called to the position of librarian of the public library at Paterson, N. J., the first free public library in the state organized under the head of the Salem (Mass.) public library, but the attractions of New Jersey were too strong to permit him to remain very long outside her borders, and upon a unanimous call of the board of trustees he went to Newark, N. J., in 1889, to take charge of the new library just springing into existence. Dr. Hill remained in Newark until 1901 when he resigned to accept work in the broader field in Brooklyn. At Paterson, Salem, and Newark, Dr. Hill had the difficult task of organizing new institutions, and at Lowell the still more difiicult task of reorganizing old libraries on a modern basis. The public library at Brooklyn, Dr. Hill's present charge, has an annual income of $350,000, and had 800,000 volumes on its shelves. His work, being for the most part in new libraries, was of the most arduous and trying character. In the estimation of his fellow-librarians Dr. Hill is regarded as valuable to his profession in the highest degree. In 1906 Dartmouth college conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters, the first ever given by that college. Dr. Hill was for five years secretary of the American Library Association, and in 1906 served as president of that organization.

OLIVER P. COSHOW,

Lawyer and Statesman,

Was born August 14, 1863 in Brownsville, Ore. He was educated in the public schools and at the university of Oregon. He soon attained success at the bar in Roseburg, Ore.; a member of the democratic party; and a member of the Masonic and various other patriotic and fraternal orders. In 1904-08 he was a member of the Oregon state senate from Douglas county; and served on several important committees. He is a member of the board of higher curricula for the term of 1909-12; and has had various other positions of trust and honor.

Farmer, Soldier, Lawyer, Legislator,

Was born February 24, 1834, on Plentiful Creek Farm, Spotsylvania, Va. Studied law in Lexington, Va., and in 1859 located in Roane, W.Va., and was elected attorney for the state in that county in 1860. He joined the confederate states volunteers in 1861 and was elected captain of his company, then a part of the Wise Legion operating in West Virginia. All of his brothers being in the war, he resigned his commission and went to the old home to take care of his father and mother. The war continued and, unable to remain inactive while his state was being invaded, he joined the Mercer cavalry of the ninth Virginia cavalry regiment and saw active service in charges at Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Mine Run, and other battles; was later captured as a state prisoner and held until exchanged in 1865 after acquittal by the military court. He resumed the practice of law in his native and adjoining counties in 1866; was elected state's attorney for Spotsylvania, and later served as representative of his county for two terms in the house and one in the state senate, 1876-1885. He was a member of the readjuster party, and in all his campaigns had to fight the determined opposition of the democratic party. Virginians know best what this means. In 1879 he married Miss Caroline Elizabeth Jones of Fauquire county, and is now the father of nine children, namely: Samuel, William, James, Robert, John, Matthew, Elizabeth, Margaret and Julia. The boys are all professional men widely located and eminently successful. Mr. Powell's father, also named James L. Powell, was a Baptist minister, and his mother was Julia Stevens before her marriage, and connected with the Montague family. Mr. Powell has now retired from active business and is spending his time on the farm of his birth amid the priceless treasures of his splendid library and hallowed associations of his ancestral home. He is chiefly interested in the education of his daughters and noting the movement of things in the county and state he loves so well.

ROBERT BRECKENRIDGE BAKER,

Merchant,

Was born in London, England, January 31, 1867; son of Robert Breckenridge and Annette Louise (Matlack) Baker, who were residing temporarily abroad. His father was the founder of the Phosphor Bronze Smelting company of Philadelphia, and was a descendant of Job Baker, who came from England and settled at Westport, Mass., about 1760. The line is traced through his son Job, who married Rachel Weaver; their son George W., who married Ruth Howland Smith, and their son Robert B., Colonel Baker's father. His maternal ancestors were of old French Huguenot stock, and his great uncle, Timothy Matlack (q.v.), was a noted revolutionary patriot whose portrait hangs in Independence hall, Philadelphia. The first two years of Colonel Baker's life was spent in Paris, France, after which his parents returned to their home in Philadelphia. He was educated in the William Penn Charter school and at Swarthmore college. He left Swarthmore in 1886 to begin a mercantile career, entering the employ of Robert Hare Powel and company, coal operators of Philadelphia, and remaining there until the company was taken over by its successor, the Sterling Coal company. This company operates a number of coal mines in Pennsylvania, employing some 800 men and mining approximately one and a half million tons of coal per year. It is one of the largest mining concerns in Pennsylvania. Beginning in a clerical capacity, he rose to higher positions, becoming secretary and a director of the company in 1889, vice-president in 1902, and president in 1907, a position he still holds. He is also president of the Baker Transportation company, Bakerton Land and Improvement company, Bakerton Water company, Bakerton Supply company, and El Mora Coal Mining company; vice-president of the Stineman Coal and Coke company, and treasurer and director of the Powelton Barge company. For recreation he indulges in motoring, golf, riding and other outdoor sports. He was aide-de-camp on the staff of Governor Daniel H. Hastings 1895-99, and attained the rank of lieutenant-colonel. He is a member of the New York, New York Athletic, Army and Navy, Ardsley, Riverside Yacht, Indian Harbor Yacht and the Fairfield County Golf clubs. He is unmarried.

SAMUEL MARTIN INMAN,

Cotton Merchant,

Was born at Dandridge, Tenn., February 19, 1843. His great-grandfather, Abednego Inman, was a gallant revolutionary soldier of English descent, a farmer and Presbyterian, and his great-grandmother, Miss Thompson, a Virginia lady of Scotch-Irish family. His father was Shadrack W. Inman, a successful merchant, and his mother Mrs. Jane (Martin) Hamilton. During vacations his judicious sire disciplined him in industry and steady habits by farm and store work, and he attended Maryville and Princeton colleges, until at eighteen his studies were interrupted by the war, through which he served in the 1st Tennessee cavalry, as private and lieuant, acting at the end on division staff duty, and doing the soldier role with the same completeness that has marked his whole stainless and valuable career. In 1866 he did business a year in Augusta, Ga., and in 1867 removed to Atlanta, Ga., forming with his father the cotton house of S. W. Inman and Son, which upon his father's return to Tennessee in 1870 became the great firm of S. M. Inman and Co., doing the largest cotton trade of the South, and probably in the world. He married in 1868 to Jennie Dick of Rome, Ga., who, after a beautiful life, died in 1890. With intuitive judgment he has drawn to him the best partners and workers, and with consummate ability and enterprise created the most colossal cotton business of the South, amassing a fortune nobly used. Commercial genius runs in the family. His brothers, John H. and Hugh, and two kinsmen, Wm. H. and Walker Inman, became self-made millionaires, John at one time being president of the Richmond Terminal company, with its 11,000 miles of railway threading the South, and large system of ocean steamships. Mr. Inman is a genuine Christian philanthropist and temperance leader, generous in charity, and public-spirited. He was a chief founder and one of the commissioners of the Georgia school of technology. He was a large stockholder in the Constitution Publishing company, the East Atlanta company, and also is now director in the Southern Railway company, and the Lowry National bank of Atlanta; is chairman of the board of trustees of Agnes Scott college, a splendid college for women near Atlanta; and a host of similar enterprises. He has repeatedly declined public trusts pressed upon him unsought by popular confidence. His manly strength and firmness are set off by a perennial and gentle amiability, which perhaps lies at the foundation of his remarkable success.

JAY ELMER ADAMS,

Land Proprietor,

Was born March 30, 1862, on a farm near Osceola, Clarke county, Ia., the son of Thomas J. Adams, a farmer, and Berilla, his wife. His people were Kentuckians originally, and are of the kin of the Adams, Moffett and Hickman families of Indiana. Brought up as a country boy, with no superfluity of education, Jay E. Adams was thrown upon his own resources at eleven years of age by the death of his mother. Each summer was spent in working on a farm for the bare necessaries of life and the winters were spent in plodding through simple text books at a rural school. At the age of eighteen, Mr. Adams took charge of a country school in western Nebraska, then went into a store as clerk, and at twenty became traveling salesman for a wholesale house in Omaha, being then as thoroughly trained to toil and as self-reliant and alert as most college men are at thirty. His salary as a salesman was good and the nucleus of a fortune was laid by frugal living and careful saving. For a time Mr. Adams lived in Denver, Col., but in October, 1890, settled in San Antonio, Tex., which has ever since been his home. There he devoted himself to real estate interests, buying much acre property and dividing it into city lots. It is he who bought the land, plotted the streets and developed the attractive suburb of Laurel Heights, now the best resident property in the city. Mr. Adams is also the owner of ninety thousand acres of land in Mexico and eight thousand acres in Texas farm land, of which more than two thousand acres is in cultivation and in farms. He also owns some six hundred and fifty acres in farms in Illinois; a summer resort and a summer home in the mountain of Colorado, besides townsites and additions in Texas. All of his operations have been conducted in his own name. To him and his wife, Mame M. Young, whom he married in Central City, Nebraska, in 1883, four children have been born, namely: Carleton, Craig, Jay Junior, and Marjorie, a little girl now of six years, but who is boss of the household. Mr. Adams takes natural pride in his growing possessions, but far more in the fact that he has never intentionally done anything to be ashamed of and has always tried to apply the Golden Rule. He feels a keen interest in all public affairs for the benefit of humanity and in his church and Sunday school work, he himself being an international worker and officer. His chief pride of all things is in the manhood of his now three grown boys: one in business, successful; one in college and the third in high school. He says he expects them to be a great improvement on the "old man", because they have a much better opportunity than he had. Mr. Adams' home is one of the finest in all Texas and a prettier place could not be found in all the Southland.

SANFORD C. LEWIS,

Business President,

Was born March 13, 1847, in Cleveland, Ohio. In 1876-77 he was prospecting for minerals in Central and South America; and subsequently became recognized as one of the most successful business men of Western Pennsylvania. He is president of the Eclipse Refining company; is vice-president of the Franklin Natural Gas company; and for two years has been mayor of Franklin, Pa. In 1896 he was quartermaster-general of Pennsylvania. He was a member of the St. Louis convention that nominated President McKinley.

ERNEST R. MOORE,

Representative from Linn County,

He is of Scotch-Irish stock, his parents settling in Iowa in the early fifties. Received his education in the common and high schools of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, supplemented by private instruction. Served upwards of ten years in the Iowa national guard, resigning his commission in the fall of 1897. On the outbreak of the Spanish-American war he enlisted in Company C, forty-ninth, Iowa, as a private, and was afterwards commissioned as first lieutenant and quartermaster, serving on the staff in that capacity and seeing service in the United States and Cuba. Is a banker by profession, being president of the American Trust and Savings bank, one of the largest banks of Cedar Rapids. Married December 25, 1902, to Winifred Evans. Has been a delegate from his county to all republican state conventions for the last eleven years. Was a delegate to the republican national convention at Chicago in 1908, which nominated William H. Taft, and was secretary of the delegation and a member of the convention committee on rules. Elected representative in 1906, re-elected in 1908 and 1910. A republican in politics.

JOSEPH THOMAS RICHARDS,

Railroad Engineer,

Was born February 12, 1845, near Rising Sun, Md. He was educated at the West Nottingham academy of Maryland; and in the Polytechnic college of Pennsylvania. In 1869 he entered railway service and soon filled positions from rodman to chief engineer. HUGH DOUGHERTY,

President Marion Trust Company of Indianapolis, Ind.,

Was born July 28, 1844, in Darke county, Ohio. He served as a union soldier during the civil war, enlisting as a member of company F, ninety-fourth regiment of Ohio volunteer infantry. He was made prisoner of war, and sent to Camp Chase, Ohio, until his exchange. After his military career he entered business pursuits; became assistant cashier in the First National bank of Bluffton, of which his uncle, John Studabaker, was president. The title of this bank was subsequently changed to the Studabaker bank, of which institution Mr. Dougherty has been president since 1895. He was largely instrumental in the building of several railroads, and has been active and liberal in the promotion of all material interests in his city and county, and has been equally conspicuous in advancing the cause of education and morality. In 1870 he was elected to the Indiana state senate; and served with distinction in that body. In 1878 he was a candidate for congress; and was delegate to the democratic national convention in 1884 and again in 1892; and resides in Indianapolis, Ind.

WILLIAM BEACH OLMSTED,

AMOS LAWRENCE MASON,

Physician,

Was the grandson of Jeremiah Mason and of Amos Lawrence, and was born at Salem, Mass., April 20, 1842, his father, the Rev. Charles Mason, D.D., being rector of the old St. Peter's Episcopal church in Salem. Dr. Mason was graduated from Harvard in 1863, and, after spending five years in travel and study, entered upon his profession of medicine, taking his degree at the Harvard Medical school in 1872, having passed the previous year as house physician in the Massachusetts general hospital. After another period of European study he returned to Boston, where he has since given his constant attention to his professional duties, which, like those of most physicians, are not of a nature to attract the public eye. He was one of the directors of the Boston dispensary, a private corporation established in 1796, which gives medical care to a large part of the poor of the city. He has spent much time, for thirty years, as one of the medical staff in the service of the great city hospital of Boston, an institution which has few equals among similar municipal establishments, either from a philanthropic point of view, or as regards the educational advantages which students of medicine may there obtain. Dr. Mason was associate professor of clinical medicine in the medical faculty of Harvard university; member of the Massachusetts Medical society and of the Association of American Physicians; is president of the Suffolk district and of the medical improvement societies in 1896-97. He belongs to the Society of Colonial Wars.

SHEPPARD KNAPP,

Merchant,

Was born in Yorktown, Westchester county, near Peekskill, August 30, 1839; descends from one of the older families of the country. Moses Knapp, born in England about 1655, was one of the trustees named in the royal charter of White Plains, dated March 13, 1721, and died in this country in 1756 at the age of 101. The men of the family were farmers and their lands have been handed down from father to son through successive generations. Jacob Frost Knapp, Sheppard's father, farmer and carriage builder, died when his son was three years of age. Coming to New York in 1852, a lad, Mr. Knapp obtained a clerkship and saved enough to gain a year's course at an academy in Bordentown, N.J. Resuming the fancy dry goods trade in New York city, he accepted later a clerkship in a retail carpet store in Hudson street. In 18555 a fellow clerk and he started a carpet store of their 1855 a fellow clerk and he started a carpet store of their removing to a commodious store on Sixth avenue, near his present location. Seven years later, he negotiated for the erection of a large building, which he now occupies, although it has been enlarged. When Mr. Knapp began the sale of carpets, the American manufacture was in its infancy. Mr. Knapp promoted the development of the home industry, and it is largely due to his effort and example that millions of dollars, which were once annually sent to Europe for carpets, are now retained in this country. The Smyrna American carpet almost owes its existence to Mr. Knapp, and he was refused a patent only on a mere technicality. In 1863 he married Sarah E., daughter of Hiram Miller of New York. They have five children. Mr. Knapp is an earnest and active citizen, esteemed for his upright and progressive character. He is a member of the New York Athletic club.
